Dear Sir:

I am an attorney in New York City and I represent novelist Ayn Rand. Recently, Miss Rand received a telegram and two letters, apparently from someone in your town. Xerox copies of the telegram and two letters are enclosed herewith.

I want to stress that the purpose of this letter is not, repeat not, for the purpose of instigating or instituting any action of a legal or police or other nature of any kind whatsoever.

My sole purpose in communicating with you is in an effort to find out whether you have any information concerning the sender of these letters, [redacted] that you can communicate to me. We are not unused to receiving odd mail, and some confidential information about the sender of these particular pieces would be very helpful in enabling us to deal with this. As I said, any information you do provide me with will be held in the strictest confidence.

b7C

I repeat that this letter should in no way be construed as a request for your office or any other person or organization in British Columbia to take any action with respect to the sender of these letters of any kind whatsoever, and that all I am seeking is some information.

Yours truly,

Dear [REDACTED]:

You may recall that on the date of September 27, 1967 I complained to your office concerning a telegram and two letters which my client, Ayn Rand, received from [REDACTED] apparently a resident of Terrace, British Columbia. At that time you told me that [REDACTED] was known to your office because of a similar complaint and that [REDACTED]

The purpose of this letter is to inform you that several days ago my client received another letter from [REDACTED] this time handwritten and approximately eight pages long. We would appreciate it if you could somehow stop this, although we certainly do not want to do anything to aggravate the situation. In other words, we find ourselves in the position of not wanting to make matters worse on the one hand, while on the other hand hoping that you can do something to prevent these letters.

Any help that you can give me in this respect will be greatly appreciated.

This demand, then, that you (and the world) come to me is a wish to kill the world because it offers no challenge. Many will come to me - but not you. Were I to hold out, I would kill you, wouldn't I? Could I love a woman who came to me - or would not this very "victory" destroy the challenge I so desperately seek? This would destroy any chance of knowing a mate.

And the same applies for inheriting the past - the only things worth inheriting are those things created by intransigence.

Therefore, my mother, I go to collect my love - a job I tried to delegate and should kick myself for. I am not ready to destroy the world yet - if I held out for my point, I would die, one way or another - if my love came to me I would have no love - and if she didn't I would die and take life with me.

I have already beaten you, and did long ago the first time I knew - 2 or 3 years ago - that I could meet you and touch you, hold you as an equal on this earth. All my work since then has been also for this day - the espousal of your works, the contempt for those blind to them, etc. I will build the world in my image, and it will also be yours. The day of our meeting approaches, my mother, and on that day the earth will shake. You are in my debt, you see, finally.

On New Year's Day in Yosemite I was sure I was "dying". Later, when I felt OK, I thought that you had died to prove your intransigence, to "beat" me — to free me for my work and give me an inheritance of intransigence — and then I knew that I did not want you to come to me. Had you died to prove yourself stronger, I would have had no choice but to die also, to be with you, because nothing on earth could ever challenge me that much.

So I have won everything. A mother, a father, a mate, a home, an earth, a universe. My intransigence is that I never gave up my dreams — stars and mate — and because of this have found they are both the same. Tell me that my book, my mother, is not the greatest story ever told, and that I have not inherited the pen of Ayn Rand. You know what it means to me. You will live forever in me.

The past "died" at Yosemite — I returned to claim my earth and write the future. I was "given" the knowledge of the immortality I saw there at 16 and knew I had to define it. It took me all my life.

I came to Vancouver to see if H.R.M. had died. Had you died, I would have killed him, too.

So your book ends, and mine begins. I love you.

AIR MAIL

Ayn Rand

Mother

If you be still alive, know that on New Years Day when I wrote my last letter, I wanted to "die" to be with you. You told me I was right, when I was fighting all alone — and for this I owe you everything.

I know you have never been challenged as I can challenge you. I know you will not yield to me, because to do so is to cheapen my inheritance. Do you see? I must kill you for the banner — which will come to me in mind? We immortals thus earn life with intransigence. You know I would consecrate the ground under your feet, kiss your hands, kneel before you, but cannot go to you. I will legendize you with this love.

Thus will the banner one day be taken from me, as one immortal kills another, and I "beat" my successor.

Because you are an unchallenged woman, I cannot know a mate — you are my challenge, in mind. I do this out of both pleasure, and honour to you.

One request — visit H. R. MacMillan ^{more} once before you die. I have shown him a star if he will see it.

The intellectuals are dead — long live the intellectuals!

I have been wrong on one point. I will go to my star, my mate, and win her myself.

Good-bye, my love. Again, thank you. Oh, we both know the love we have for each other. You will beat me to the stars - and this is all I was ever after - challenge, to be beaten, and yet emerge victorious.

I love you, I love you. All your dreams will live in me, and become real.

b6
b7C

||| I have killed a man for you - and my last poem - Zion - will be yours, you will see. You will lead me and my mate to the stars.

Had you been a man, it would have all been so easy!

 was questioned as to the extent of his contacts with AYN RAND and he replied as follows:

He said that he had read practically all of AYN RAND's published works. He had a tremendous admiration for her technical abilities and felt that she offered a intellectual challenge to her readers. He said that he wrote approximately 50-60 letters to RAND, over a period of about two years, in which he indicated to her that he had accepted this challenge. He said he on several occasions threatened RAND, however, the threat was that he would replace her in her position of intellectual leadership and he had absolutely no desire or intention to harm her personally or physically.

[redacted] continued that there were many aspects of life in the United States which should be challenged or changed and it was his theory that he could bring about these changes by means of writing letters. He said that he would never attempt to make any changes by other than legal means.

[redacted] stated that on approximately February 18, 1969, at 11:00 a.m., he visited 120 East 34th Street, the address to which he had forwarded all of his letters, directed to Nathaniel Branden Institute. He said the doorman at this address informed him NATHANIEL BRANDEN was no longer located there, at which time he noticed the name F. O'CONNOR as a resident of the building. He said he was aware AYN RAND had been married to FRANK O'CONNOR and the doorman then told him that AYN RAND no longer lived at this address. He said he then saw the name [redacted] as a resident of the building and he was aware that [redacted] was an associate of BRANDEN and RAND. [redacted] said he left a message for [redacted] indicating his, [redacted] address, as the National Hotel, New York, New York.

[redacted] stated that in view of the fact Miss RAND indicated his letters to her had alarmed her he would not attempt to contact her or her associates, in any way, in the future. He stated that he planned on leaving New York City in about two to three days and returning to Tulsa, Oklahoma, where he would probably stay on a permanent basis.

"Do you see? I must kill you for the banner which will come to me in time?" and "were I to hold out, I would kill you wouldn't I?"

On February 20, 1969, [REDACTED] was interviewed and he advised that wrote approximately fifty to sixty letters to Ayn Rand over a period of two years. He said, he, on several occasions, threatened Rand, however, the threat was against her position of intellectual leadership and he had absolutely no desire or intention to harm her personally or physically. ENCLOSURE

[redacted]
On March 25, 1969, [redacted] Attorney, [redacted] [redacted] advised that Frank O'Connor, 120 East 34th Street, New York, New York, the husband of Ayn Rand, had received about 16 letters from [redacted] which were postmarked at Tulsa, Oklahoma during the period marked October 15, 1969. He said the letters contained no threats, however, they did contain numerous references to President Richard M. Nixon and Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel. [redacted] made available those letters which pertained to President Nixon and Secretary Hickel and there were nine in number. These letters were reviewed and were found to contain no threats. The letters did contain the following references to President Nixon and Secretary Hickel:

"And you, Hickel, with your blast against against the oil industry for the oil on the beach which they paid to clean up".... "Men who know how to run an industry are more qualified than some ape in an office trying to feel powerful. I think you are a man, however, and that you will show it henceforward."

In a reference to President Nixon he wrote "I've threatened to cut down the nation if Government power be not retracted to a point consistent with individual liberty and constitutional law so I want a national strike if I'm locked up. Shut her down bugler."

"He can't ignore me-can't allow a man to preach 'sedition' openly, actively, honestly. I told him he could be the greatest President of all or King John-whatever he shows-and gave him a complete essay to think on".

It is noted that in these letters [redacted] indicated he had written directly to President Nixon and Secretary Hickel. He also made references to the fact that he had promised not to write Ayn Rand and perhaps Mr. O'Connor would not even show Rand these letters.

John Drummond, Associate Editor, "The Tulsa Tribune" newspaper, Tulsa, Oklahoma, on March 17, 1969, furnished seven letters which were received on March 15 and 17, 1969, by the newspaper, addressed to Jenkin Lloyd Jones, Editor. All were postmarked at Tulsa, Oklahoma, and each envelope in the return address portion contained the single notation "Eastham". The letters were handwritten and carried the signature of [redacted]

b6
b7C

Most of the letters were prefaced with such phrases as, "What's the matter Dickie boy?" or "Wake up Dickie boy," apparently referring to President Nixon.

The writer characterized the Government of the United States as presently a form of collectivism driven by fear. So weak that one strong man with honesty and truth could "blow the whistle" on it. He called for the return to "limited" Government.

The writer characterized President Franklin D. Roosevelt and President Lyndon B. Johnson as incompetent apes. He characterized President John F. Kennedy and Senator Robert F. Kennedy as fascist tyrants. He left blank a space for the characterization of President Nixon.

Following are excerpts from the letters:

"Wake up Dickie boy, before the ghost of Albert Einstein hits you between the eyes and you see E=MC2 proved in the minds of men as a shock wave sweeps this nation. One printing press can do it - I know it and you know it."

"Kneel Dickie boy and you can remain our leader. I am Archbishop of this nation. Even without presses my work will soon sweep this land like light. Think Dickie boy."

"What's the matter Dickie boy? Are 5000 Bureaucrats now rushing around trying to install a missile defense against me? If you fear - like you fear China - then you fear truth as well. Everyman in this nation knows we should knock out China's Nuclear sites now."

"Now, Dickie boy, look in your mirror and ask yourself who has an iron grip on your soul - a public opinion poll showing 83.95% support - or one man. You want the Iron Duke to squeeze it, Dickie? The chain of time - past and future - can be pulled very tight, and I have barely started. Power lies within the hands of all creative men not in political hands but in one poet's pen."

"You're on the rack Dickie boy. Heave man. He won't see it yet but he's going to feel it. Creative men - those who loved life, who had their minds turned outward to the horizons and not inward with fear and pat answers - carried truth with them and mankind forward - against the screams of the apes."

"I have created a true 'religion' of life - man will soon explode in an intellectual renaissance - and the welfare state will, in all justice - go to hell".

"Come on Dickie, in what arena would you like to fight - Poetry, Prose, History, Science, Business, Economics, Philosophy, Education, Government, Logics, Law, Time."

On June 5, 1969, Henry F. Dressel, Attorney, 150 Broadway, New York, New York, representing Time, Incorporated, visited the New York Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and made available a handprinted envelope addressed to "Mr. Andrew Heiskell, Time, Inc. Time-Life Bldg., Rockefeller Center, New York, New York 10020," postmarked May 25, 1969, Taos, New Mexico, containing a return address of Eastham, Taos. Dressel also made available an accompanying handprinted letter which reads as follows:

"HEISKELL

"H.R. MacMillan - Vancouver

"Ayn Rand - New York will both die on or before June 6, 1969. TIME, Inc., will devote an issue of TIME to their biographies and the story.

"Listen, Heiskell, for your life depends on it. One snide remark - one bit of the two-bit witty, sarcasm your writers use to amuse the masses - and your head is forfeit. There are sacred things on this earth. There is right, and there is wrong. There is good; and there is bad. Climb out of your hole, and see the light - or by the end of 1969 TIME, Inc., will exist no more - nor will Andrew Heiskell.

Mr. Dressel stated that Andrew Heiskell had not been advised of the receipt of the above letter; however, he would be so advised at the first opportunity. The above letters and envelopes were made available by HENRY F. DRESSEL, Attorney, 150 Broadway, NY, NY, who represents Time Inc. Mr. DRESSEL said that in his opinion, these two letters do not contain a direct threat to Mr. HEISKELL, however, considering the cumulative affect of previous material directed to Mr. HEISKELL by [REDACTED] he, DRESSEL, considered these letters and all letters written by [REDACTED] and directed to HEISKELL, to be seriously threatening in nature.

b7C

It is noted Mr. DRESSEL stated that he appreciates that previous threats referred to the USA at Albuquerque and other AUSAS have resulted in declinations based on [REDACTED]. DRESSEL stated that Time Inc. has influential friends in the NIXON Administration, and if necessary, in an effort to get action against [REDACTED] he would appeal to these unidentified friends to intercede on his behalf. He said that he is perfectly aware that the FBI had done everything in its power; however, he felt it his responsibility to make every effort to stop the flow of correspondence from [REDACTED] to HEISKELL.

REQUEST OF BUREAU

The FBI Lab. is requested to compare the enclosed material with material which [REDACTED] previously has admitted preparing, to determine if enclosed was, in fact, written by [REDACTED].

OKLAHOMA CITY

AT TULSA, OKLAHOMA. Will present to USA. It is noted [REDACTED] has continued a voluminous correspondence with associates of AYN RAND and Mr. HEISKELL of Time Inc., and the Attorneys of AYN RAND and HEISKELL have stated they considered this material to be threatening, based on the particular letters and also the type of correspondence of the volume. With the thought in mind that [REDACTED] apparently does not intend to discontinue his correspondence, and as a result of which he will be constantly referred to this agency, the USA at Tulsa may consider taking some action against [REDACTED].

Now it's time for another summation, after a series of "wild" moves. Everything has meaning, and all ties in, ^(the) students. Even though all this happened centuries ago, it applies to your world as well.

All men who have felt power — who have known they were dominant — have felt the need to define the basis of this power. Alexander attributed it to a direct relationship with the Greek mythical gods. Jesus placed his on a relationship to an undefined, fuzzy god he got from the Hebrew religion. These two men came closer than any others to placing this "thing" where it belonged — complete within themselves. Churchill toyed with this as well — others said of him that he thought he was a reincarnation of his heroes.

Men such as these; who are laws unto themselves, are compelled to discipline themselves — to define the power they possess. I have shown this in the complete control of my poetry by cadence and rhyme. Never trust any man who cannot or will not discipline himself. A poet whose work is devoid of control and meaning is either begging to be kept in a slave status, or wants to hold the power of a butcher over men, or both. Men have always wanted something outside themselves to control them. Even those who quit religion would say cannot rule themselves." Such "thinking" is a one-way trip to the logical end — slavery and death.

Longfellow — still staying away from the world of science — felt this power, and came closer than any other man to grasping it, for what it was.

There is a thing bigger than one man, and it is time — the march from α to ∞ — and the man who gave us the key was Darwin. Time is bigger than one man — but to grasp all this is to make man as big as time. Aldous Huxley sensed this. Julian sensed the terrific impact of Darwin's work. But none of these captured its full meaning, tying in one solid bundle all knowledge, the worlds of science, religion, philosophy, etc.

When you grasp it, the past, history, becomes vividly alive in your mind. Conversely, men who held this power, even undefined, like Churchill, held a consuming love for the past. His "reincarnation" was no more than the work of his heroes — their expression of creative energy. — kept alive in his mind.

And to know, lucidly and specifically, this power within yourself, is to hold all time in your hands.

Orwell's statement that "he who controls the present controls the past, and he who controls the past controls the future", is true — but his story was not. To hold such power, as one man, and to know it, is to know the past you loved, then wrote correctly to place history in proper perspective, then loved it even more — is the same past the future will maintain. A new "gang" might, conceivably, try to destroy all this, but one man would once more resurrect the truth. The big question, of course, is: "how long shall it be before this "gang" approach is destroyed forever?"
And there is only one answer — NOW. This is your last chance. You were given many chances to analyze the strength of individuals, making your own logical connections, and you flubbed every single light given to you. But to have it all before on paper is too much. Nothing is free. I have ^{you} not "given" you life. To hold this piece of paper in your hands is to live or to die. I know there will be no more chances to say that in making victory impossible for me, you have won. To say this is to say you have triumphed over life by refusing to live — consider that for awhile, and see where it leads you.

I have smashed you, crushed you with life. You cannot fight me — and the awful reality of this is that you let yourselves get into this position. Had you not, I could have taken your world and felt pride in doing so, accepting kudos from men whose respect I respected, and lead them then with pride. As things now stand, were any man to say "thank you" to me, I would retch, or spit on him. My sons can thank me — you never can.

Yet life always moves on, and up, so I must now exact some penalty from a generation that stopped it — from those honest enough to pay it. And it can only be one price. To deny time is to be destroyed by time. And the penalty is automatic. Time will have retribution — history cannot allow this generation.

ever to exist on earth. There is no escape. You are dead in time itself, and all time is mine. Thus, any man I have named, can buy his place only by leaving me his life's work. You are not buying history — any man wants life here and now — but this is the price for your life here and now — deny that you owe me your life and you are dead right now. To have sold out the upward march of life — to place the burden of going back and picking up the pieces on your young — is to stand stone dead in time. You reverse the process. Thus =

Life is only one line:

And you are not part of it.

To stand in ~~such a~~ debt to your young, to the future, is an impossible concept. — it is death — and thus you should see what is meant by deficit financing. A debt to the past is the right, which is paid by

1. A thank you, and then
2. Beating it with an even better way.

And any of you — any one of you — could have stopped all this by saying "I WILL NOT LIVE THIS WAY", refusing to obey "Laws" you knew were wrong, and telling the world you were prepared to die for your rights, ~~told~~ them, with your shotgun in your hands, to enforce their laws if they could. That young sniper in Pittsburgh said this, but not in words. — and all of you are brighter than he is.

Thus it is you — who knew better — that are the real deficit financiers. You had even thrown off this concept of a bogus "god" that otherwise would have emasculated you. You had the work of Ayn Rand — work that cannot be "bought" for $6.95 and called "interesting". I saw the price when I first read it. I said "Oh boy, Oh boy, let any living being deny this and live!" And all my "friends" did just that, from those who said my coffee table was really a goldfish, and it was only my opinion that it was a table — to those who said "Ayn Rand is my LEADER" with adoration in their voices waiting for the next book that would tell them $2+3=5$ and they could once more proclaim her brilliance.

Leadership? Command? A real leader, commander, wants only challenge. Alexander, the finest leader of men ever to live, sought only challenge. Any man under him could have led Alexander. Any of his generals could have stormed into his tent and said

"This plan is ridiculous, and will not work. I refuse to accept responsibility for it, and ask to be relieved of my command."

And he would have won a hearing. Had he a better plan, Alex would have seen it, and thanked him for it. But let him not challenge it, then flub it, or fail to execute it, and Alex would execute him.

Or, to put it another way, any man in my company, from bottom laborer to Senior VP, can lead the whole. If he puts his neck on the line for something that is just, every dollar, every man in the empire will be right behind him, on the line. All for one, and because it will be his war, he will call the shots. If I did not do this, you see, he could turn around and kill me and take the empire — and I'll let no man have this chance.

And that is why Alex took the world. He considered himself a god and all men under him were told they were.

men, as he was — and an army of gods, one or 20,000, can whip anything in all creation. Ptolemy, who marched with Alexander, grasped the power he held over men who could refuse him nothing. Once the whole army was without water. Some of the men found a hole, scrounged a helmet full of water, and took it to Alex. He poured it on the ground. Some bright man recorded that he thus gave every man with him a drink — and it was true. In such a manner could he pass to his men his own animal drive that could march without food, without water, as long as they were alive to march, and fight as long as they could still breathe. The leader looks on his command as an extension of himself. He likes to see 5000 men function as one, under his leadership — and never loses the knowledge that the unit is based on individual strength.

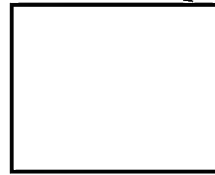

And now — now — no one can evermore honestly deny that one man, any man with the spine to put his carcass on the line for a dream, can lead the world. If men ever grasp this, all men will be gods. This is the glory of the mind. This is equality — the

And, come to think of it, I have opened another new world — epistemology. Challenge, when you're not sure at all you will win. A bully is dead, and knows it — all you have to do is tell him.

The young, unshackled mind grasps for knowledge, consumes it, stores it in its formative years, filed away in its memory units. But this is not conquest, not strength. I'll take on any spineless, ~~whining~~ whining, insipid SOB with 25 ~~deg~~ degrees and an IQ of 697 and make hamburger of him — and I have only two degrees and an IQ of 180. In a fight for survival, where your life is at stake, if you be alive, your means of survival — your mind — becomes creative. This is what a few men have experienced as the exhilaration of combat. But this was nothing compared to a war of minds. The mind defines the objective — or the danger — and punches it into the computer which rapidly goes through the memory bank, extracting all pertinent data and putting out new connections of knowledge as required to win. With victory, the process stops — no one can sit around and think or study himself into power. He is not creative, and adds nothing to life. His "big day" never comes.

You do not have to fight minds to know this creative joy. This would automatically kill the top dog in a world of the mind. The fight must be against the unknown, and this is the beauty of the mind — life — the joy of the pioneer — the reason behind the policy: CHARGE! There is no other way. To fear the unknown is to die. And the motivation cannot be fear, — it pushes men outward. Creativity and fear cannot exist together. The earth is finite, dying, but it cannot be this that drives men away from it, or they'll never make it. It must — can only ~~be~~ — be conquest — the love of oneself, and the inner demand to subordinate physical creation, shape it in the image of man. "I am the best, and all creation is mine." I don't look at the milky way and feel small, a piece of dust; in a world I cannot control. I become possessed with celestial empire. I don't care who — or what — is out there. There is nothing more powerful than I. Man — wake up, goddam you — now rules this universe. He has no choice — to deny this is to die.

b7c

Now that's interesting. I said it was challenge, when you're not sure you will win — and then said nothing is more powerful than I. I must either die, then, or recognize that something is as powerful as I. I wonder what that could be? It must be something, because I'm not ever going to die.

And you chaps were the ones who tolerated the concept of "sin" — the denial of that which not only keeps man alive himself, but produces children as a bonus. Ah, you'll will there be screams on judgment ^{day} as religion dies forever.

See Liberty in heat!

See Liberty storm heaven, to prove women, as well as men, can conquer!

See Liberty get hell beat out of her!

See Liberty get made!

See Liberty fight for her wants!

Remember, men, never again make Liberty mad. She is a merciless mistress, and can kill for her wants. She is not free.
She is wild, savage, and expensive.
Never stand before a bull in the rut,

You see, Oh spineless "men" who never saw Liberty as a thing sacred and holy — who think it is free — and you "women" who spread eagle for nothing — I have built your brave New World for you, honestly, no sinful sneaking at all. If you want Liberty, chaps, there is nothing to it. Like this:

1. You walk up and say "Take your clothes off, Liberty," and she will strip. If she hesitates, just pull out a camera — she'll strip for a camera.
2. "Act, Liberty", and she'll act, for everyone knows you can really act only when you are bare — that the public wants nothing left for the imagination.
3. "Lie down, Liberty", and she'll lie down.
4. "Respond, Liberty", and she'll respond.
5. "Put your clothes on, Liberty", and she will.

Men Oh man — who could want anything more? Liberty for all! This is the world you created — not I — I merely open your own eyes to it. This is your world where all belong to all — where Liberty is a public nude and does whatever she is told a good "actress" must do. Good luck, all! You always thought it was luck, horoscopes, evil spirits, and selfless altruism. You have it now.

9-49102-25

Liberty is free for all. She'll act for all. She'll wiggle, giggle, respond altruistically to please all men, give them their "trip".

No takers? Oh shame, shame — those who refuse to enjoy a world they always wanted are saying they were seeking only death. You said that individual pride was nothing. Liberty knew that to be an actress and not a square she had to strip for you, because the public wants skin. She gave it to you.

She will not now draw a line, since she already belongs to you. She'll please all of you.

Free love! Your Brave New World! And always remember I showed it to you. Don't thank me — this was altruism, I wanted to give you this clear picture of your world for no selfish motive.

The Swage.

9-49102-25

your mind. Even if you, a reader, saw grammar you would not use, or a point you might not make — the whole would be Ayn Rand. We are one. All honest minds on earth are now one — and I the speaker.

Thus I hang by a thread. My life on earth — all this work — rests totally on my own belief that is my matching force. This belief makes it so. It is the only thing that will enable me to decompose at the mere touch of her body or the sight of her eyes — and her belief the same! This temple I have built — this unity — allows such totality, and the drive into heaven — death, rebirth, regenerative immortality — 2+2. It could be no other way. Love like this could never die. It restores every cell of the body — you never age. It is total use of energy — universal creative energy — so new energy must come from somewhere. Where? All the ages? Possibly later and I will awaken to find we are indeed in Eden! I know it will extract your energy.

You are alive now in me. As I write this, I can feel your mind, hand, pen, writing it — your eyes reading it. I have your "spirit" totally. The same with — and both of you could do the same, writing, and know I was alive in you. To you two — the only women I have written — and the man to whom I have driven my "spirit" — it is one being. God is real. Creative energy. I have

that other couple somewhere, that is our heaven if we don't make it here, is not a matching force for life. They call back — come home, come home. Now I am "fighting" this. It begins to get me, now that I am thinking of it. I would awaken as a couple coming out of a trip into time as one energy force. They say come home — and I say NO — I want to build my own home! I am not their only child. Their lives do not depend on my return — I am but one manifestation of the energy they threw over the universe. The objective is to match it. Their energy created life on earth. There may be one couple — or many such — who have reached this. The earth is about to join the human race, the gods.

Just what happens to all the apes, I have no idea. Perhaps they all die. — energy extracted to regenerate my life, what I have poured over the earth and will pour totally, without reserve, into as I decompose with rapture. I do know our "child" — this one absolute energy force — you will extract your energy and bring it home. You will then live within and my mind. You do now — just as for me to write of something is to live it. You hold my energy within you — as I do yours — the only man to take it, to "come alive" with your work, fully, I can write with

But these two — man and woman in creative bond — are not on earth. Where, I have no idea — only that they are within this universe, this basic unit of creation. Were you to die now — you would revert to them — still fully happy, of course — but I'd rather have you in Julie and me.

This energy I have found is real. It is all life. It can be extracted instantly from anyone, once you know how. It can be totally used in 60 seconds of intense creative love. Two forces uniting — coming alive as one — toes to hair — roaring into heaven. Assume the man died. His whole being — mind, life — would then be totally alive in the woman, because of the love required to take total energy in 60 seconds — a complete breakdown of one's being. This would make her absolute — unmatched — and the sight of her mate dead would snap out life instantly — and vice versa.

You cannot live as Ayn Rand, once [] and I join. We both know this. I am your matching force, as I am hers — as I am for life on earth. Yet you know you have won heaven. So do I. I knew it at three, in a sense, when I heard my mommy and ~~call~~ daddy calling from space.

When [] and I join, you will know. It is scientifically impossible now for you not to know. Light is behind us, no longer a sustaining force. All that keeps you alive is ~~me~~ I, unmatched, for

b6
b7c

Now, grandma, here's what's going to happen to you.

One of these days, a magnificent conquering will, in the body of [redacted], is going to seize my mind and body and will — two forces of nature, real, that will detonate on joining and roar into heaven with energy way beyond electric, nuclear, or light. Universal creative energy — life force. This will, in [redacted] was always there. You and I have defined it for her, told her why she is equal to man — not made her equal to man. In other words, she has my brain — and yours, because ours are the same, and now hers.

The love [redacted] and I know — the emotional intensity and rebounding, cycling, rising energy that mushrooms out over the universe when we fully join — will carry us "out" — "dead" — to acquire new energy — what I call regenerative immortality — throwing a child into time, over the entire universe. You are such a "child." I am such a child. [redacted] is now such a child. Mozart, Tschereikovsky, Alexander — all one-way unmatched creators have known this totality, immortality, as you, [redacted] and I know it. Two in one. Gatt and Dagny.

When [redacted] and I go "out", you will kick off, stone dead. You will awaken in two bodies. Ours — as will all creative minds that have built up to me.

Julie and I are seizing the universe. Were I to die, I would revert to two people. I know this.

I still think it was you, who thought I would be impressed by seeing my dream become a public whore. If this be so,
I humbly suggest you go to hell.

I can never know joy at the sight of a body the public has pruned —
have tried to accept it in my temple, but cannot. She will die. I will die.

But you, and life on earth, will die after [] while I watch. I have built a real world in my mind. You were all warned. Somewhere there is life for me. Not here. The earth is not worthy of the beauty I see, know. You made [] a whore in your image — but because she could be so made, I could never respond to her. You all had a chance. Now you will die. I want all life in human form to die.

It will. It must. I am life — all of you are death. Enjoy it.

9-49/02

Q104

b6
b7c

I suppose it was too simple for people.
Perhaps had I made it much harder to grasp, then honesty and pride and love of life, they would have come to me. No matter. Somewhere
I will find all I want.

A cup of coffee
A fireplace
A mate

A temple. I have almost killed myself imagining [] in my temple. I love what I saw in the Sound of Music. It was not [] [] was a whore, as you are. There will be no other. There is no woman, not one on earth, that can match me. No man, either. A pack of fifth — some more than others, but all fifth. [] will die first. Then you — then all, like flies. Please begin anytime.
I warned all of you in plenty of time to come to me. I am immortal, alone. All other human life on earth is unreal, death. So be it. I groped alone — it cannot be a waste. []

b6
b7c

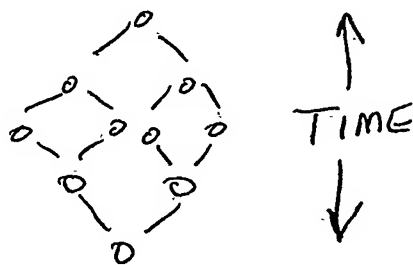

Tell [] the simple, chest bursting rapture of the thought of a cup of coffee on a hearth, with a mate — an equal — is much stronger in me than it could ever be in her. Such a thought sustained me for over 16 years, and I never sold it out. She did. All I would see with her would be a nude little whore making cheap films for the public. Liberty? A Star for the earth? My wife? MINE?

b6
b7c

You will all please commence dying. []
then you, then the whole filthy works.

See? No sequence! One to two — two to one — parents-child-parents!

All life in this universe is one. I sit on top, because I saw a matching force. Your work, your picture, for some reason did not turn me wild. I read it in 1959. Yet when I saw [redacted] in 1966, I rose right out of my chair!
For over a year, I thought it was the setting,
the plot, the mountains. There is more.
In her mind and body, having come up through time, is I. We are one. Total,

This one sensation, by the way, was necessary. Otherwise the male is consumed — burned up — and both thus die. Gaud, imagine — the first ship to heaven! Whoosh!

I have found creation — total creative power of this universe.
To find more — [] and I must join. I can reach new horizons now, only with her. And she, only with me.
The unknowns are fantastic. Heaven — somehow, on earth or elsewhere. Contact with other life. The fate of the apes. Should [] & I live, on earth, and the apes too, I have established the way it will be — the unit, the tap, the power/energy fountainhead, evolutionary force, regenerative motor of all life
on earth.

So there it sits! Done — all I can, short of dying and leaving this earth for home — or building a new home here. I would prefer the latter. So it must be. [] must come to me, sooner or later. She must match me, seize me, roar into heaven with me. You will know.
So will anyone else on earth with knowledge of this,
and total love of life, like HRM. A new world, of instant life/death, lies ahead. It lies in the mind — but only minds that can see this, hold the power to create, to do what I have done. You see,
I was a mutant! Man is his own evolutionary force. I did it — now the apes will know what it means to swim up Niagara Falls — if they are even alive.

b6
b7C

seized the earth — and cannot let go — nor want to. It's a simple job — all it requires now is a mate.

This energy is what you were playing with with Galt's motor. It will one day be a toy for men. Not until all are immortal, as and I.

See what I mean? Matching forces? Men and women are now not "alive" apart. When they join — life explodes — universal creation. Nothing but this. Think now like a woman. Sex is more than the physical acts of an animal. When the mind is geared to matching forces — uniting to make life — your entire being explodes. You do not "feel" sex as such. You experience a massive energy force rushing into your whole being. The male feels total envelopment in energy. Yet it is more than this — for when it becomes two forces, joining to one — the sensation then becomes one. All that is felt — the minds having been already bound, already flying out — is one mighty blast of rapture so intense the body cannot "survive" it. The physical acts required to join are done without any knowledge — the mind has been long gone by this time, and programmed action does the rest. This is why "women" do not interest me. When you see this, you must have a matching force. It is a woman, sure, but not anyone that happens to be handy.

On October 9, 1969, Mr. GRAHAM advised he had received two letters from the subject, postmarked October 8, 1969, at Tulsa, Oklahoma, addressed to Mr. GRAHAM at the U. S. Attorney's Office. In one letter, [REDACTED] said he was convinced GRAHAM was incompetent, a spineless "SOB", cannot enforce the laws of his employer, cannot do his job, was drawing salary for nothing, and asked if the urge never hit him to do something useful with his life. He said GRAHAM should be disbarred and forever denied legal practice but said there are many other jobs in line with his talents. He mentioned ethics and asked if he had no ethical sense at all. He said GRAHAM's job is unethical and told him to "Deny it, or do it." The letter continues along the same vein and asks how many people he has prosecuted with unjust laws. It talks about honor, justice, reason, pride, integrity, and individual liberty "under a rule of law."

In the other letter, he talks about morality and ethics and asks how a man could build his life in a pig-sty of false morality as he has done. The letter continues and among other things states "But I'm sure you will admit this to yourself, Graham - and realize you have been, to date, a complete, immoral, unethical, incompetent, rotten swine who has never produced one thing of value to civilization."

was interviewed at

He was informed of the identity of the interviewing Special Agents, and informed the inquiry concerned alleged threatening letters received by Senator EDWARD KENNEDY. He was informed by Special Agent PEARSON of his rights and furnished with a statement of his rights, and after reading the statement, executed a waiver of rights. He thereafter furnished the following information:

[redacted] said he had been shown copies of the letters received by Senator KENNEDY by the Secret Service in Albuquerque, New Mexico. He said he had written these letters. He was asked if he intended to cause Senator KENNEDY any bodily harm and he replied, "Not at this time." He said he would probably like Senator KENNEDY if he met him, that KENNEDY "has drive," but that he is wrong. [redacted] said he had written letters to Senator KENNEDY and President RICHARD NIXON, the latter of whom he has great admiration. He said all politicians, even before the depression, have been the initiators of physical force in this country, and "we" are now reaping what they have been sowing all this time. He said "My defense against this is what I have been doing with the pen."

When asked how this related to his writing alleged threatening letters, he said, "I can't emasculate my letters that easily." He said if it came down to it, he might use force to defend his rights. He said he thought the proper position of any government is limited government on the rule of law which hold the government in check. He stated he does not mean wire tapping or law enforcement, but the right of government to pass laws. He said he would cite two examples.

He related that one farmer grew wheat for his own use. The government came and took it away from him. The man had a right to fight right there. He stated we are Anglo Saxon people and are reluctant to react.

Another example, he said, is income taxation, or progressive income taxation, that hits not the wealthy or the poor, but the middle people who are in a nice bracket but the more they make the less they keep. He said so many are saying "To Hell with it." He stated he did not agree with taxation, that this is a use of force.

He said a third example is Dr. BENJAMIN SPOCK. He related he did not agree with Dr. SPOCK, but would like to get on the platform with him and tear everything he says apart. He said for him to be convicted is a shame.

[redacted] said anyone who fights with the pack is not worth a damn. He was asked how this relates to the letters to Senator KENNEDY. He said KENNEDY is the leader of the "more forceful group." He is going to solve all the problems by legislation. It used to be the government would say go solve your own problems. The people now say make us free from want. He said sooner or later the doctors are going to get someone who will say "Go to Hell."

b6
b7C

[redacted] said he had written ten or twelve letters to Senator EDWARD KENNEDY, all mailed from Taos, New Mexico. These were written over a period of the last two months. He said he had also written to President NIXON, but in a different tone.

b6
b7C

He said he is through writing to Senator KENNEDY. He stated that in fact, he is through writing letters for a while.

He was again questioned if he intended to cause Senator KENNEDY any bodily harm. He stated he would say if he were elected President in four years he would have "to use something more than the pen."

He was asked if he would kill him. He answered "I don't think so." He said he would start by writing again, "much more appropriately."

He said what he is trying to do is this. The people live today, they do not see the future. He said you cannot tell Labor that jobs come from profits. He said, but to tell people, makes people think. He said there are two ways to do this. He mentioned a means was to form gangs and blow things up.
